Italians To Ask Peace?

Rumor Heard That Mussolini Has Been Ousted

BUENOS AIRES, April 29—Rumors that King Victor Emmanuel of Italy has dismissed Premier Benito Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano were circulating today among diplomatic circles in Buenos Aires.

The king has asked Marshal Pietro Badoglio, former Italian chief of staff, to form a new government to negotiate peace, the rumors said.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: There was no confirmation elsewhere of the Argentine rumors, although Italy's king was reported to have conferred at length Monday with Premier Mussolini, Count Ciano and Marshal Badoglio, among other officials, supposedly on Adolf Hitler's speech Sunday to the German Reichstag.)

(Hitler's speech, widely interpreted as indicating trouble on the German home front and failing to contain the usual promises of new victories, was reported to have generated much additional gloom among the leaders of harassed Italy.)

LONDON, April 29—Informed London quarters said today that no information had been received here to support sensational reports from Rome and Buenos Aires that a crisis in Italy is imminent.

These circles said the reports should be treated with the greatest reserve.

No information has been forthcoming to indicate that popular dissatisfaction in Italy is likely to crystallize in an active movement against the regime.

It is felt here that the German grip on Italy is too tight to permit internal demonstrations and the Italians themselves, it was said, probably are too disheartened to undertake any active steps now.

NAZI ATTEMPTS TO END RUSSIAN PRESSURE FAIL

MOSCOW, April 29—Repeated German attempts to launch a counter-offensive in the vital Smolensk area of the Russian front have been smashed by the Red army with heavy losses to Adolf Hitler's forces, advisers reaching Moscow disclosed today.

At the same time, the supplement to an official Soviet communiqué said the Russians had also beaten back German counter-thrusts in one sector of the Kalinin front, northwest of Moscow, and had improved their own positions in an offensive maneuver at another point in the same area.

Tanks and aircraft figured heavily in the attempted Nazi counter-attacks east of Smolensk, but all of the thrusts were unsuccessful and the Germans lost a thousand men in the process, a report said.

High School Band And Girls' Sextet Will Appear May 14 On Athletic Field, All Proceeds Going To Circleville Unit

Circleville high school's senior band, regarded as one of the best in south central Ohio, and its girls' sextet, which has gained much popularity during the present school year, will offer a combined concert Thursday evening, May 14, on the high school athletic field with all proceeds to be turned over to the Circleville Civilian Defense council to help it purchase equipment and to provide training necessary under the program.

The concert will be planned by C. F. Zaenglein, director of instrumental music of the school, and Miss Marjorie Vorhees, director of vocal music, in cooperation with Robert G. Colville, county treasurer who has been designated by the Council to make arrangements for the concert.

The entire program will be out-of-doors, unless inclement weather should force it to be held in Memorial hall. Mr. Colville intends to ask service clubs to handle sale of tickets, which will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for school pupils.

There will be no speaking, the entire program being musical.

WOMEN WARNED TO SAVE JARS, POLISH BOTTLES

WASHINGTON, April 29—The WPB warned women today that only refills will be available in quantity in "the near future" for powder, lipstick and possibly even nail polish.

It called on women to save the metal and plastic containers in which they buy their lipsticks and other beauty aids. They also were urged to save cleansing cream and cold cream jars, and all types of bottles, including nail polish bottles. The WPB declared that "special care" should be given in saving the lids and caps on bottles and jars. It pointed out that the scarcity of metals because of the war requires that jars be made only with paper, cellophane or other non-permanent lids.

"If women save these containers they will probably be able to buy adequate quantities of refills," the WPB said. "This has been the procedure adopted in England since the outbreak of the war."

Norwegian Coast Lashed By Planes To Harass Fleet Menacing Soviet Port

LONDON, April 29—Royal Air Force, carrying out orders to "destroy the enemy's capacity to make war," again bombed the Nazi naval base at Trondheim and heavily raided Hitler's principal naval port at Kiel on Germany's Baltic coast, the air ministry announced today.

Airdromes in the low countries and a German power station at Ghent in occupied Belgium also were blasted.

Large fires were started by the bombing at Kiel, where one German fighter was shot down. The British lost nine bombers over enemy territory.

A government spokesman said the attacks on Trondheim were aimed at dislocating, disturbing and endangering the "considerable" German naval force known to be based there. The intention of the British, he said, was to make the Nazi base as "unhealthy as possible."

York, in northern England, was subjected simultaneously to a reprisal raid by the Luftwaffe.

Five of 20 Wrecked

Approximately 20 German planes attacked the English city. Five of them were destroyed. York, like Norwich which was attacked yesterday, is a city famed for its churches. It is 188 miles northwest of London.

York's famed cathedral of St. Peter which is in the form of a Latin cross was not damaged.

Damage elsewhere in the city was considerable, however, but the loss of life was slight.

HERO OF WORLD WAR I OFFERS TO SERVE AGAIN

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 29—"Give me some of those Kentucky and Tennessee riflemen that the Army says are illiterate. I want a battalion of them. They are crack shots. They are the best soldiers in the world."

Thus did Sgt. Alvin C. York, outstanding hero of World War I, volunteer his services today to the United States War department to train a battalion of selective service men rejected for military service because of illiteracy.

More than 5,000 Tennesseans have been rejected for military service because of illiteracy, according to Brig. Gen. Thomas A. Frazier, state selective service director.

Sgt. York, 54-year-old mountaineer who "signed up" in the fourth national selective service registration Monday at his Wolf river home, made known his intention to volunteer his service on a visit to the state selective service headquarters in Nashville.

Gen. Frazier said he would transmit Sgt. York's request for service to the War department immediately.

DEFENSES IN BAY STAND DESPITE BIG JAP RAIDS

WASHINGTON, April 29—Powerful Corregidor today continued to repel Japanese dive bombing and artillery onslaughts, as American guns silenced enemy shore batteries, broke up troop concentrations and sunk a medium-sized armed vessel in Manila bay.

This was reported in the War department's 209th communiqué which also intimated that the Japanese are moving with increased determination to throttle continuing American-Filipino resistance.

Intimation of Japanese plans was contained in a statement that the Japanese are advancing against isolated American-Filipino patrols in northern Luzon.

Ever since the fall of Manila these patrols have harassed Japanese lines of communication and enemy-held positions in the northern part of the principal Philippine island.

The War department also reported that the Japanese have increased their naval armada in the central islands of the archipelago.

SWEDEN HEARS SOUND OF EXPLOSIONS IN NORWAY

STOCKHOLM, April 29—Heavy explosions resulting from the new Royal Air Force attack on Trondheim and surrounding areas in Norway were clearly heard on the Swedish side of the border last night. The barrage was even more intense than on the previous night and lasted for two hours, starting at 10:30 p. m.

THIS photo sent from London shows the German industrial city of Rostock in flames after Royal Air Force bombers, apparently determined to obliterate the vital Baltic port, had completed its fourth raid in four days.

F. D.'s Chat Reveals American Soldiers Are Everywhere

By International News Service
Spurred by the revelations of President Roosevelt's fireside chat, the United Nations, and particularly the United States, push onward today with the grim assignment of winning the war against the axis.

Even as the President told the world that the Japanese have been checked in the South Pacific; that a counter-offensive may be expected shortly in the theatre; that American warships are "in combat" in Mediterranean waters, and that American-manufactured flying fortresses soon will strike at Germany, United Nations fliers lashed out with new blows on two fronts and Russian armies scored new advances on the eastern European front.

In the southwest Pacific, American and Australian fliers destroyed a large ammunition dump in a new raid on the Japanese airdrome at Lae, New Guinea, and the defenders of the Corregidor fortress in the Philippines defied the enemy.

LONDON—Official British circles were jubilant today over President Roosevelt's revelation of the heretofore closely-kept secret that United States naval forces were operating in the Mediterranean. Authoritative sources said it could not be disclosed at this time whether the American warships were reinforcing the British Mediterranean fleet or operating independently but it was felt that the U. S. vessels were working in close cooperation with the British.

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—A large ammunition dump was destroyed by United Nations fliers in a raid on the Japanese airdrome at Lae, New Guinea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in a communiqué today.

LONDON—Reuters (British) news agency today quoted a Paris radio broadcast which said Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain will deliver an address to French workers May 1.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29—Officers of the Fourth Air Force reported today that "an unidentified object" sighted off the coast brought the "yellow" warning that put the Los Angeles area on the alert for 38 minutes this morning.

The Fourth Air Force refused to say whether the object later was identified, or whether it was sea or air borne.

LOS ANGELES, April 29—The Los Angeles area was placed on a 38-minute warning alert by the fourth interceptor command early today.

No explanation for the warning, a "yellow" alert flashed to police and fire departments, was given by Army officials. There was no blackout.

The alert was sounded at 3:48 a. m. and the all clear came at 4:20 a. m. Radio stations in the area were ordered off the air during the warning period.

The Federal Communications commission said that radio stations in a 50-mile radius of Los Angeles were affected by the order. Radio stations in San Diego were placed on a "restricted operations" basis during the interval but no alert was sounded in the border city.

PRESIDENT ASKS FOR SACRIFICES TO DEFEAT AXIS

Executive Reveals Warships Engaged In Mediterranean, Other Waters

WAGES MUST BE FROZEN

Every Person Must Give Up Some Advantages To Aid In All-Out Effort

WASHINGTON, April 29—An inspiring picture of the military might of the United States was laid before the American people today by President Roosevelt along with the somber warning of the great sacrifices that must be made by every man, woman and child before victory is achieved.

In his third fireside chat of the war, Mr. Roosevelt clearly revealed the extreme self denial that must be imposed and emphasized that wages of all workers must be frozen at present levels.

He bluntly stated that he would "use all of the executive power that I have" to carry out his "national policy" recently presented to Congress as he told the American worker that "you will have to forego higher wages for your particular job for the duration of war."

The President revealed for the first time that American warships are now in "combat" in the Mediterranean in addition to task forces in all the other waters of the world. American-manufactured flying fortresses will soon carry the war to German soil "fighting for the liberation of the darkened continent of Europe," he warned the axis.

Opening with a review of the war situation Mr. Roosevelt said that American forces have already checked the Japanese, that a counter-offensive soon will be launched in the Pacific area and that the United Nations will take the necessary measures to "prevent use of French territory in any part of the world for military purposes by the axis powers."

Program Reiterated
The President reiterated his seven-point program submitted to Congress which he termed "the national economic policy for attaining the great objective of keeping the cost of living down," including control of prices and rents.

"Some people are already taking the position that every one of the seven points is correct except the one point which steps on their own individual toes," he said. "The blunt fact is that every single person in the United States is going to be affected by this program."

"The price for civilization must be paid in hard work and sorrow and blood. The price is not too high."

"This great war effort must be carried through to its victorious conclusion by the indomitable will and determination of the people."

He said that the war effort must not be impeded "by the faint of heart," or those who put their "own selfish interests above the interests of the nation," or by the "bogus patriots who use the sacred freedom of the press to echo (Continued on Page Two)"

PRESIDENT ASKS FOR SACRIFICES TO DEFEAT AXIS

Executive Reveals Warships Engaged In Mediterranean, Other Waters

(Continued from Page One) the sentiments of the propagandists in Tokyo and Berlin. Pointing out that the war has a "home front" Mr. Roosevelt stated: "Here at home everyone will have the privilege of making whatever self denial is necessary, not only to supply our fighting men, but to keep the economic structure of our country fortified and secure during the war and after the war."

The President said that the only effective action to check the cost of living is a simultaneous attack "in one comprehensive, all-embracing program covering prices, profits, wages, taxes and debts."

"As I told the Congress yesterday, 'sacrifice' is not the proper word with which to describe this program of self denial," he continued. "When, at the end of this great struggle we shall have saved our free way of life, we shall have made no 'sacrifice.'"

The President sounded a note of reassurance when he said that "our own American civilian population is now relatively safe" from enemy bombings which laid London and Coventry in ruins.

"To an ever increasing extent," he added, "our soldiers, sailors and marines are fighting with great bravery and great skill on far distant fronts to make sure that we remain safe."

Tribute to Russians

The President was strong in his tribute to Russia's fighting forces, stating that "these Russian forces have destroyed and are destroying more armed power of our enemies—troops, planes, tanks and guns—than all the other United Nations put together."

He also lauded the battling Chinese and said "that no matter what advances the Japanese may make, ways will be found to deliver airplanes and munitions of war to the armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek."

Mr. Roosevelt said that there "is good reason to believe" that the advance of the Japanese into the southwest Pacific has been checked—and we are determined that the territory which has been lost will be regained."

Continuing he stated: "For every advance that the Japanese have made since they started their frenzied career of conquest, they have had to pay a very heavy toll in warships, in transports, in planes and in men. They are feeling the effect of these losses."

"It is even reported from Japan that somebody has dropped bombs on Tokyo and on other principal centers of Japanese war industries. If this be true, it is the first time in history that Japan has suffered such indignities."

WAR TODAY

Britain's RAF kept up its ceaseless battering of axis strongholds on the European continent by pounding at the naval bases of Kiel, on Germany's Baltic coast, and Trondheim, the Norwegian harbor where the huge Nazi battleship Tirpitz is quartered.

Attempting to carry out Adolf Hitler's promises of retaliation, the German luftwaffe sent 20 planes over York, in northern England, inflicting considerable damage but only a small number of casualties.

While Russian forces were beating back repeated German attempts to launch a counter-offensive in the Smolensk area and were otherwise harassing the Nazis along the long Eastern Front, responsible sources in Washington said that shipment of vital American supplies to that embattled nation had reached a new, high peak.

In Burma, the United Nations outlook continued dark, with a British report from New Delhi disclosing that U. S. Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell was rushing in reinforcements in an attempt to stem the three-pronged Japanese advance which threatens to sever China's lifeline, the Burma road.

Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia warned that the situation on the island continent, too, could become critical at any time. Curtin said his government regarded an outright Japanese attack on the commonwealth as "a constant and undiminished danger" despite recent successes by American and Australian fliers in that theatre.

Timber owners in the northwest in 1939, are said to have spent $1,673,000 to fight forest fires. State and federal governments appropriated $540,000 for the same purpose.

POLICE HELP IN CAPTURE OF YOUTHFUL CAR THIEVES

Two fifteen-year-old boys who stole a 1942 Cadillac sedan in Michigan and failed to pay for gasoline they secured in Circleville were being held Wednesday in Chillicothe.

The youths were Robert E. Thomas Jr. and Robert Palkey, both of Grosse Pointe farm, Michigan. The pair stopped at the Crites service station on South Court street about 5:40 a. m. Wednesday, ordered 15 gallons of gasoline, and then drove off without paying for it.

Patrolman George Green chased the car for a short distance and then called Chillicothe. Highway patrolmen stopped the stolen car as it came into the city on Route 23.

Chillicothe officers notified Police Chief McCrady of the apprehension. The boys will be turned over to authorities in Michigan and will be charged with auto larceny, Chief McCrady said.

In addition to the five luftwaffe craft destroyed it was believed several others were damaged since the attack was met by exceptionally strong opposition from anti-aircraft defenses.

The British raid on Trondheim was the second in as many days. The objective of the RAF appears to be to render the Nazi base on the coast of Norway useless and eliminate the threat from there against United Nations supply routes to Russia.

Kiel Chief Port Kiel is the chief naval port of Germany proper, situated on Kiel bay adjacent to the Baltic south west of the Jutland peninsula.

The previous attack on Trondheim, where the large battleship Tirpitz reportedly is berthed, was concentrated on docks and the Nazi airfield. Stockholm reports said many Germans and Norwegians were killed or wounded in the raid.

A German correspondent was quoted in dispatches from Stockholm as saying the RAF pummeled Trondheim for three hours sending over wave after wave of planes. It was the largest attack ever made on the German base, he said.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin meanwhile reported, according to the Exchange Telegraph agency, that the damage done to Rostock, industrial Baltic city, by the RAF's four consecutive raids necessitates the evacuation of the whole town. Neutral correspondents have not been permitted to visit Rostock since the terrific British bombings.

HENDERSON NOT MAKING HOUSEWIVES POLICEMEN

WASHINGTON, April 29—Price Administrator Leon Henderson, issued the sweeping order setting ceiling prices on retail goods, doesn't want to promote any fights between the housewife and the grocer.

When he was asked if the nation's housewives would be the "policemen" in the drive to control prices, Henderson replied: "We have carefully avoided the term policeman. I don't think that it will be necessary to gun up a fight between the housewife and the retailer who after all is at the end of the line."

Henderson pointed out that the order will force grocers and all

Sheriff Malon Owens of Hardeman county, headed a party of volunteers from Qunah. He had not reported back to his office early today and was said to be working in Crowell.

Reports of the storm and damage also were sent to Vernon and Benjamin. Ambulances, doctors, nurses and fire fighting equipment were sent into the stricken area. The storm hit about 10 o'clock. The dead and injured were in their homes in the majority of the cases.

PRYOR Okla., April 29—Tornado-stricken town of Pryor, virtually destroyed late Monday by the twisting storm which swept through the town's business and residential districts, began the grim task of burying its dead today, with funerals scheduled for nearly every half-hour period of the day.

Red Cross officials, who have taken charge of the city, issued their first death list during the night, showing 43 dead had been identified. Those in charge, however, stayed with their original estimates that the final death list would mount to a figure between 75 and 100. Some dead have still not been identified.

It was believed that additional bodies may be found in outlying districts and many of the injured are reported to be critically hurt. The official injured list released this morning showed that 365 had received hospital attention, while many others were given first aid treatment for minor wounds.

Every effort was being extended to relieve the homeless with food and water, rushed to the stricken town by various agencies who immediately mobilized their forces for aid. House-to-house canvasses were being made to furnish stricken families with food, clothing and medical supplies.

McSWEENEY WILL ENTER CAMPAIGN FOR GOVERNOR

CLEVELAND, April 29 — Considered the strongest candidate in a field of five, John McSweeney of Wooster, former congressman and Ohio welfare director, entered the Democratic primary for governor today.

Undoubtedly assured the support of the powerful Cuyahoga county Democratic organization, although no announcement by that group has been made, McSweeney was a sure thing to enter the gubernatorial race when Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati declared he was not a candidate.

The Democratic national committee and his party's gubernatorial nominee in 1938 made that decision April 8 and McSweeney immediately began a swing through the state to learn his candidacy would be received.

Then came conferences with Ray T. Miller, chairman of the Cuyahoga county Democratic phalanx and McSweeney's subsequent decision to run.

The Woosterite, who resigned his federal post as Ohio administrator of defense savings several weeks ago, carried Cleveland by 56,000 votes and Cuyahoga county by 905 over Harold Burton in the 1940 United States Senate race only to lose to the former Cleveland mayor in the balloting downstate.

MINISTRY SAYS TRONDHEIM, LOW COUNTRIES HIT

In addition to the five Luftwaffe craft destroyed it was believed several others were damaged since the attack was met by exceptionally strong opposition from anti-aircraft defenses.

The British raid on Trondheim was the second in as many days. The objective of the RAF appears to be to render the Nazi base on the coast of Norway useless and eliminate the threat from there against United Nations supply routes to Russia.

Kiel Chief Port Kiel is the chief naval port of Germany proper, situated on Kiel bay adjacent to the Baltic south west of the Jutland peninsula.

The previous attack on Trondheim, where the large battleship Tirpitz reportedly is berthed, was concentrated on docks and the Nazi airfield. Stockholm reports said many Germans and Norwegians were killed or wounded in the raid.

A German correspondent was quoted in dispatches from Stockholm as saying the RAF pummeled Trondheim for three hours sending over wave after wave of planes. It was the largest attack ever made on the German base, he said.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin meanwhile reported, according to the Exchange Telegraph agency, that the damage done to Rostock, industrial Baltic city, by the RAF's four consecutive raids necessitates the evacuation of the whole town. Neutral correspondents had not been permitted to visit Rostock since the terrific British bombings.

HENDERSON NOT MAKING HOUSEWIVES POLICEMEN

WASHINGTON, April 29—Price Administrator Leon Henderson, issued the sweeping order setting ceiling prices on retail goods, doesn't want to promote any fights between the housewife and the grocer.

When he was asked if the nation's housewives would be the "policemen" in the drive to control prices, Henderson replied: "We have carefully avoided the term policeman. I don't think that it will be necessary to gun up a fight between the housewife and the retailer who after all is at the end of the line."

Henderson pointed out that the order will force grocers and all other retailers to prominently display the prices of all articles sold. He said that it would be wrong to assume that "we will have a whole army of people searching for violators."

STORM LEVELS TOWN OF 1,800

(Continued from Page One) sent by messenger to surrounding county seat towns and officials, and relief parties quickly were organized. Sheriff Malon Owens of Hardeman county, headed a party of volunteers from Quannah. He had not reported back to his office early today and was said to be working in Crowell.

Reports of the storm and damage also were sent to Vernon and Benjamin. Ambulances, doctors, nurses and fire fighting equipment were sent into the stricken area. The storm hit about 10 o'clock. The dead and injured were in their homes in the majority of the cases.

PRYOR Okla., April 29—Tornado-stricken town of Pryor, virtually destroyed late Monday by the twisting storm which swept through the town's business and residential districts, began the grim task of burying its dead today, with funerals scheduled for nearly every half-hour period of the day.

Red Cross officials, who have taken charge of the city, issued their first death list during the night, showing 43 dead had been identified. Those in charge, however, stated that their original estimates that the final death list would mount to a figure between 75 and 100. Some dead have still not been identified.

It was believed that additional bodies may be found in outlying districts and many of the injured are reported to be critically hurt. The official injured list released this morning showed that 365 had received hospital attention, while many others were given first aid treatment for minor wounds.

Every effort was being extended to relieve the homeless with food and water, rushed to the stricken town by various agencies who immediately mobilized their forces for aid. House-to-house canvasses were being made to furnish stricken families with food, clothing and medical supplies.

McSWEENEY WILL ENTER CAMPAIGN FOR GOVERNOR

CLEVELAND, April 29 — Considered the strongest candidate in a field of five, John McSweeney of Wooster, former congressman and Ohio welfare director, entered the Democratic primary for governor today.

Undoubtedly assured the support of the powerful Cuyahoga county Democratic organization, although no announcement by that group has been made, McSweeney was a sure thing to enter the gubernatorial race when Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati declared he was not a candidate.

The Democratic national committeeman and his party's gubernatorial nominee in 1938 made that decision April 8 and McSweeney immediately began a swing through the state to learn his candidacy would be received. Then came conferences with Ray T. Miller, chairman of the Cuyahoga county Democratic phalanx and McSweeney's subsequent decision to run.

The Woosterite, who resigned his federal post as Ohio administrator of defense savings several weeks ago, carried Cleveland by 56,000 votes and Cuyahoga county by 905 over Harold Burton in the 1940 United States Senate race only to lose to the former Cleveland mayor in the balloting downstate.

PUPILS PREPARE TO PARTICIPATE IN STATE TESTS

Two scholarship teams of more than thirty pupils each will be sent from Circleville and Pickaway county schools Saturday to the annual district-state scholarship examinations held at Ohio State university in Columbus.

Team to represent the Pickaway county schools in competition with 16 other counties in the district has been completed, although there are still several selections to be made for the Circleville team.

Students taking the tests must be at the university by 9 a. m. Saturday. The testing program will start at 9:30. Geometry contestants must take rulers and compasses with them and commercial participants must furnish their own tables, typewriters, notebooks, paper and supplies and must have their equipment set up by 9 a. m.

This year, the state scholarship awards program, usually held at Columbus following the district-state scholarship tests, will be discontinued. Although district-state winners will be announced, they will not be presented certificates at a scholarship awards program.

Two changes were made in the county team. Louise Clark, Walnut township, will take the chemistry test with Ralph Mahaffey, Ashville, in place of Emogene Carr, Atlanta, who did not choose to participate.

A tie for one of the Latin I participants was broken by conducting another test and Wilfred H. Hupp of New Holland will take the test with Jean Brown of Salt-creek.

Henderson Outlines System Which Will Cover All That Americans Eat, Wear Or Use

WASHINGTON, April 29—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today planned to blanket the nation's 1,970,000 wholesale and retail business firms under a life-or-death licensing system to enforce his sweeping orders freezing rents and setting ceiling prices on "virtually everything that Americans eat, wear or use."

Henderson, in issuing the historic decree which ended free economy in the United States for the duration of the war and covers "literally millions of articles," warned that the country must expect more and more rationing; go back to 1932 depression year levels of per capita consumption by 1943; increase its savings and pay higher direct taxes and social security levels.

Further, he stated: "With price stability, wage stabilization . . . becomes a practical goal of public policy." In the order on prices, Henderson fixed the highest prices charged in March of this year as "an absolute ceiling over virtually everything Americans eat, wear and use." The order will become effective May 11 on manufacturers and wholesale prices and on May 18 on retail costs.

30,000 Commodities Listed

Approximately 30,000 major commodities and tens of thousands of smaller items were brought under the rigid price control. Most food, and all clothing, house furnishings, soap, fuel oil and coal are included. Exempt are certain raw farm products which are excluded under provisions of the law. Also exempt are sales of fresh fruits and vegetables and poultry and eggs because it would be almost impossible to enforce ceiling prices on these items.

Henderson also froze service station motor fuel prices throughout the country with the exception of 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia, at maximum retail price levels during March. In the east coast area, service stations are allowed to charge the highest price prevailing during March, plus 4-cent per gallon for gasoline and 2-cent per gallon for Diesel fuel.

One of the most startling provisions is the plan for enforcement of the order. Henderson said that every wholesale and retail firm, from the smallest crossroad store to the biggest wholesale house, will automatically become effective next month, the businesses will be sent registration forms which they must fill out and return. If the price ceiling is violated, the violator, Henderson warned, will be subject to court action and revocation of his license for a year. Penalties also include a $5,000 fine, a year in jail or both and civil suits for treble damages. Spokesmen in Henderson's office said that the licensing system gave the price chief virtually life-or-death powers over violators of the decree as far as business survival is concerned.

KEARNEY, N. J., April 29—Named for a noted Ohioan, the late Lt. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, a 1,630-ton destroyer built by the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company, entered the service of the Navy today five months ahead of schedule.

Launched February 20, the destroyer Lansdowne was named in honor of the skipper of the Navy dirigible Shenandoah which perished when the airship crashed at Ava, O., on September 3, 1925. Lansdowne was a native of Green-

trol of rents is as important as control of prices, the price czar designated 301 communities in the United States and the island of Puerto Rico as defense rental areas, and ordered rents to be stabilized at levels of January 1, 1941, or April 1, last year or as of March 1, this year. The areas embrace sections of 46 states containing 76,000,000 people. New York city is the largest community affected.

Henderson's order on prices covers almost every processed food commodity—such as bread, cake, and bakery products; beef, pork and their products; sugar, fluid milk and cream sold at retail; ice cream; canned meats, soups, canned fruits and vegetables; canned fish and other seafoods; cereals; lard and shortening; coffee, tea, cocoa, salt and spices.

Also covered are all clothing articles, shoes, dry goods and yard goods, soap in all forms, every kind of common fuel including firewood, pipes, cigars, cigarettes, smoking tobacco, drugs, toiletries, furniture and house furnishings, electrical appliances and hardware and miscellaneous agriculture supplies.

Service Charges Limited

The order also was broad enough to put the March ceiling over many services thus setting the rates that can be charged by automobile repair shops, garages, tailors, laundries, dry cleaners and shoe repair establishments. Prices and the fees of doctors, dentists, lawyers, professional workers, barbers and beauty shops are not affected.

In announcing the price-control plan, Henderson explained that national income this year may total $117,000,000,000. He continued:

"Of this amount, it is estimated $31,000,000,000 will be saved or paid to the government in personal taxes and $86,000,000,000 will be spent. "The supply of goods and services available will total $65,000,000,000 computed on the basis of 1941 prices. Making allowances for the increase in prices which took place prior to April 1, 1942, the supply will total $69,000,000,000. Thus, demand in 1942, unless limited, will exceed supply by $17,000,000,000."

He added that his price and rent orders comprise only an "important keystone" in the battle against inflation, or the high cost of living. The $17,000,000,000 "gap" between supply and demand, he declared, must be closed by still other steps such as wage stabilization, increased taxes, more social security levies and greater savings. He declined to say whether he favors enforced savings.

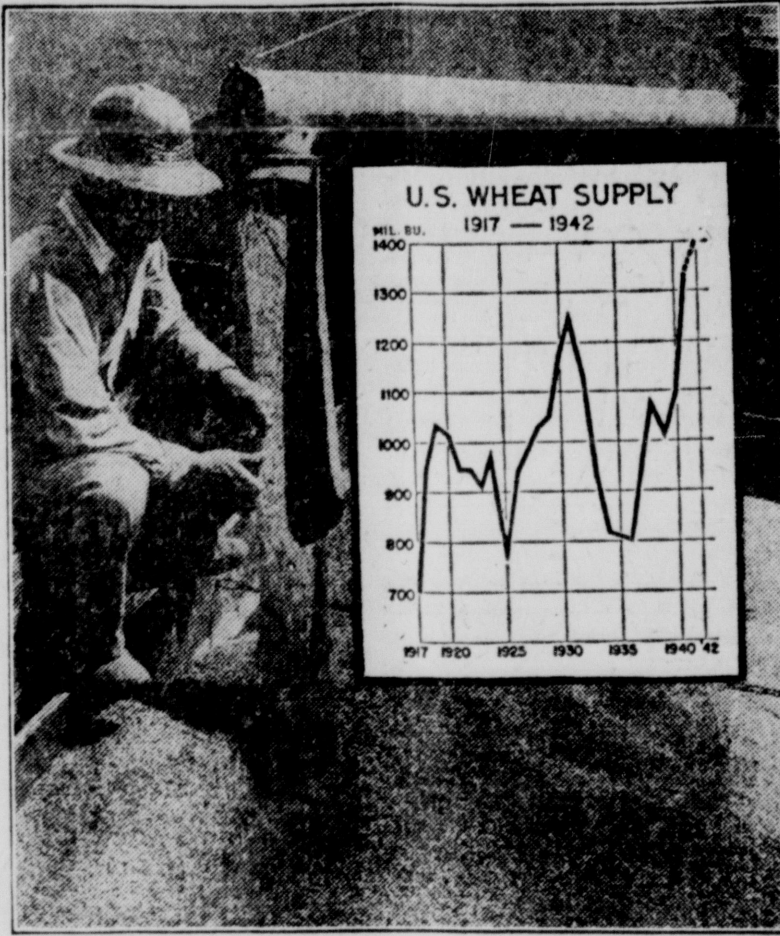

More Rationing Certain
Meanwhile, he asserted, as shortages develop the country must prepare for more and more rationing. He refused to say that commodity would be next.

Following through President Roosevelt's declaration that the nation must face "spartan living," Henderson, in his statement, said: "The material standing of living of the American people will fall. . . . Further reorganization of the economy for war must be accomplished through priorities, allocations, and rationing rather than through price."

"This regulation serves as a setting for companion steps in wage, profits and fiscal policy. . . . It is important that the excess of purchasing power be rigidly confined."

U. S. Wheat Bins Are Full

World War II finds the United States well supplied with wheat, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. As the chart indicates, the supply is double that of 1917 when America entered the first World War. It is estimated that on July 1, the Nation's supply will be nearly 1½ billion bushels, enough for two years of domestic use. Instead of plowing up new land and expanding wheat acreage, farmers are able to use land, labor, and equipment in turning out other war commodities more vitally needed—such as dairy, poultry, and meat products, vegetables, and oil crops.

COUNTIANS BALLOT ON QUOTA QUESTION

For the second time in history, Pickaway county wheat farmers Saturday will go to voting stations within their precincts to ballot on the issue of a marketing quota referendum.

Election polls will open at 8 a. m. Saturday and will remain open until 5 p. m. AAA officials predict that the marketing quota vote will carry in Pickaway county, since most farmers already have complied with the government's restriction program. The marketing quota vote carried by a small margin in Pickaway county last year.

NEWARK, N. J., April 29—In a series of sweeping raids FBI agents today concluded examination of every known Japanese alien residing in New Jersey. An undisclosed number of the aliens were arrested and taken to the island to await federal prosecution.

The federal agents, assisted by local police, visited 48 homes throughout the state and interviewed 100 Jap aliens. Only 134 known Jap aliens reside in the state and the others had been investigated earlier.

A large amount of contraband including guns, cameras, short wave radio sets and axis propaganda was seized. In one home 750 rounds of ammunition and ammunition were taken. The raids were under the supervision of E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the FBI office here.

BRITISH BACKBONE

Modest Senator Green of Rhode Island has been a consistent rooster for the British, voted vigorously for all lend-lease aid to Britain, favored Roosevelt's pro-British foreign policy 100 percent. But the other day he remarked to a British friend:

"I have fought for the British, voted for them, worked for them. But whenever I meet a member of the British Embassy I have to introduce myself all over again. They never know who I am."

Senator Green's experience, plus those of many other congressmen, with the polite but crystal-gazing British Embassy was discussed last week with British movie producer Alfred Hitchcock. In Washington to open his new mystery-thriller, "Saboteur," Hitchcock was urged by a group of senators to do a picture which would prove to the American people that the English people are not all like their Embassy.

"We need something which will sell the British people to the American people," urged Senator Claude Pepper of Florida. "We are 100 percent for the British. But a lot of our folks don't know them. We need to know more about the man in the street, the folks who are just like our folks. Unfortunately too many of us have the impression that all British are like the very charming but somewhat rarified nobility which the British Foreign Office sends over here."

Hitchcock said that his next picture would be something which got down to the bed-rock of the British people and would show what the backbone of the Empire was made of.

Licensing Program to Be Used to Enforce Ceiling Placed on Many Prices

PUPILS PREPARE TO PARTICIPATE IN STATE TESTS

Two scholarship teams of more than thirty pupils each will be sent from Circleville and Pickaway county schools Saturday to the annual district-state scholarship examinations held at Ohio State University in Columbus.

Team to represent the Pickaway county schools in competition with 16 other counties in the district has been completed, although there are still several selections to be made for the Circleville team.

Students taking the tests must be at the university by 9 a. m. Saturday. The testing program will start at 9:30. Geometry contestants must take rulers and compasses with them and commercial participants must furnish their own tables, typewriters, notebooks, paper and supplies and must have their equipment set up by 9 a. m.

This year, the state scholarship awards program, usually held at Columbus following the district-state scholarship tests, will be discontinued. Although district-state winners will be announced, they will not be presented certificates at a scholarship awards program.

Two changes were made in the county team. Louise Clark, Walnut township, will take the chemistry test with Ralph Mahaffey, Ashville, in place of Emogene Carr, Atlanta, who did not choose to participate.

A tie for one of the Latin I participants was broken by conducting another test and Wilfred H. Hupp of New Holland will take the test with Jean Brown of Salt-creek.

EDWARD B. MERRIMAN, 53, HEART ATTACK VICTIM

A heart attack caused death Tuesday at 2:50 p. m. of Edward B. Merriman, 53, a World War veteran and a resident of Chillicothe. Mr. Merriman, who had many relatives in Pickaway county and was widely known in Circleville, was visiting at a neighbor's home when he was stricken. He lived at 579 Laurel street.

He was a carpenter by trade. Mr. Merriman was born in Ross county September 29, 1888, a son of Samuel and Bernice Strawser Merriman, both of whom are deceased. He married Vida Hartley on February 11, 1930, and she survives in addition to the following: children, Edward Lee and Nancy Jill, at home; five sisters, Mrs. Thelma Routt, Greenfield; Mrs. Relis Hildenbrand, Pickaway township; Mrs. Orpha Hatzio and Mrs. Wanda Phillips, Circleville; Mrs. Erma Fuller, New York city; six brothers, Walter J. Richwood; Willard D. and Elgin, Circleville; Eben, Louisville, Ky.; and Glenis and Silas E., Washington state.

Funeral arrangements in charge of Donald E. Whittel, Kingston, have not been announced.

MRS. SARAH KINDER, 70, IS DEAD NEAR ASHVILLE

Mrs. Sarah Kinder, wife of Alonzo Kinder, died Tuesday at 4:45 p. m. at her home in Harrison township near Ashville. She was a native of Pickaway county, born March 1, 1872, a daughter of George and Katherine Cline Greenfield.

Surviving are her husband and a daughter, Mrs. Charles Reid of Ashville.

The funeral will be Thursday at 2 p. m. at the residence, the Rev. O. W. Smith officiating, with burial in South Bloomfield cemetery.

SALES TAX COLLECTION DOWN WEEK OF APRIL 18

COLUMBUS, April 29—Retail sales tax collections for the week ended April 18 totaled $1,042,321, off $81,996 from the corresponding week a year ago, and total collections thus far this year, $14,919,907, are off $916,762. State Treasurer Don H. Elbright reported today.

At the same time Elbright reported a state treasury balance of $76,710,750 as of April 24, of which $43,613, 510 was in the general revenue fund.

Henderson Outlines System Which Will Cover All That Americans Eat, Wear Or Use

WASHINGTON, April 29—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today planned to blanket the nation's 1,970,000 wholesale and retail business firms under a life-or-death licensing system to enforce his sweeping orders freezing rents and setting ceiling prices on "virtually everything that Americans eat, wear or use."

Henderson, in issuing the historic decree which ended free economy in the United States for the duration of the war and covers "literally millions of articles," warned that the country must expect more and more rationing; go back to 1932 depression year levels of per capita consumption by 1943; increase its savings and pay higher direct taxes and social security levels.

Further, he stated: "With price stability, wage stabilization . . . becomes a practical goal of public policy."

In the order on prices, Henderson fixed the highest prices charged in March of this year as "an absolute ceiling over virtually everything Americans eat, wear and use." The order will become effective May 11 on manufacturers and wholesale prices and on May 18 on retail costs.

30,000 Commodities Listed

Approximately 30,000 major commodities and tens of thousands of smaller items were brought under the rigid price control. Most food, and all clothing, house furnishings, soap, fuel oil and coal are included. Exempt are certain raw farm products which are excluded under provisions of the law. Also exempt are sales of fresh fruits and vegetables and poultry and eggs because it would be almost impossible to enforce ceiling prices on these items.

Henderson also froze service station motor fuel prices throughout the country with the exception of 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia, at maximum retail price levels during March. In the east coast area, service stations are allowed to charge the highest price prevailing during March, plus 4-cent per gallon for gasoline and 2-cent per gallon for Diesel fuel.

One of the most startling provisions is the plan for enforcement of the order. Henderson said that every wholesale and retail firm, from the smallest crossroad store to the biggest wholesale house, will automatically become effective next month, the businesses will be sent registration forms which they must fill out and return.

If the price ceiling is violated, the violator, Henderson warned, will be subject to court action and revocation of his license for a year. Penalties also include a $5,000 fine, a year in jail, or both and civil suits for treble damages. Spokesmen in Henderson's office said that the licensing system gave the price chief virtually life-or-death powers over violators of the decree as far as business survival is concerned.

KEARNEY, N. J., April 29—Named for a noted Ohioan, the late Lt. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, a 1650-ton destroyer built by the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company, entered the service of the Navy today five months ahead of schedule.

Launched February 20, the destroyer Lansdowne was named in honor of the skipper of the Navy dirigible Shenandoah who perished when the airship crashed at Ava, O., on September 3, 1925. Lansdowne was a native of Green-ville, O.

trol of rents is as important as control of prices, the price czar designated 301 communities in the United States and the island of Puerto Rico as defense rental areas, and ordered rents to be stabilized at levels of January 1, 1941, or April 1, last year or as of March 1, this year. The areas embrace sections of 46 states containing 76,000,000 people. New York city is the largest community affected.

Henderson's order on prices covers almost every processed food commodity—such as bread, cake, and bakery products; beef, pork and their products; sugar, fluid milk and cream sold at retail; ice cream; canned meats, soups, canned fruits and vegetables; canned fish and other seafoods; cereals; lard and shortening; coffee, tea, cocoa, salt and spices.

Also covered are all clothing articles, shoes, dry goods and yard goods, soap in all forms, every kind of common fuel including firewood, pipes, cigars, cigarettes, smoking tobacco, drugs, toiletries, furniture and house furnishings, electrical appliances and hardware and miscellaneous agriculture supplies.

Service Charges Limited

The order also was broad enough to put the March ceiling over many services thus setting the rates that can be charged by mobile repair shops, garages, tailors, laundries, dry cleaners and shoe repair establishments. Prices and the fees of doctors, dentists, lawyers, professional workers, barbers and beauty shops are not affected.

In announcing the price-control plan, Henderson explained that national income this year may total $117,000,000,000. He continued:

"Of this amount, it is estimated $31,000,000,000 will be saved or paid to the government in personal taxes and $86,000,000,000 will be spent.

"The supply of goods and services available will total $65,000,000,000 computed on the basis of 1941 prices. Making allowances for the increase in prices which took place prior to April 1, 1942, the supply will total $69,000,000,000. Thus, demand in 1942, unless limited, will exceed supply by $17,000,000,000."

He added that his price and rent orders comprise only an "important key stone" in the battle against inflation, or the high cost of living. The $17,000,000,000 "gap" between supply and demand, he declared, must be closed by still other steps such as wage stabilization, increased taxes, more social security levies and greater savings. He declined to say whether he favors enforced savings.

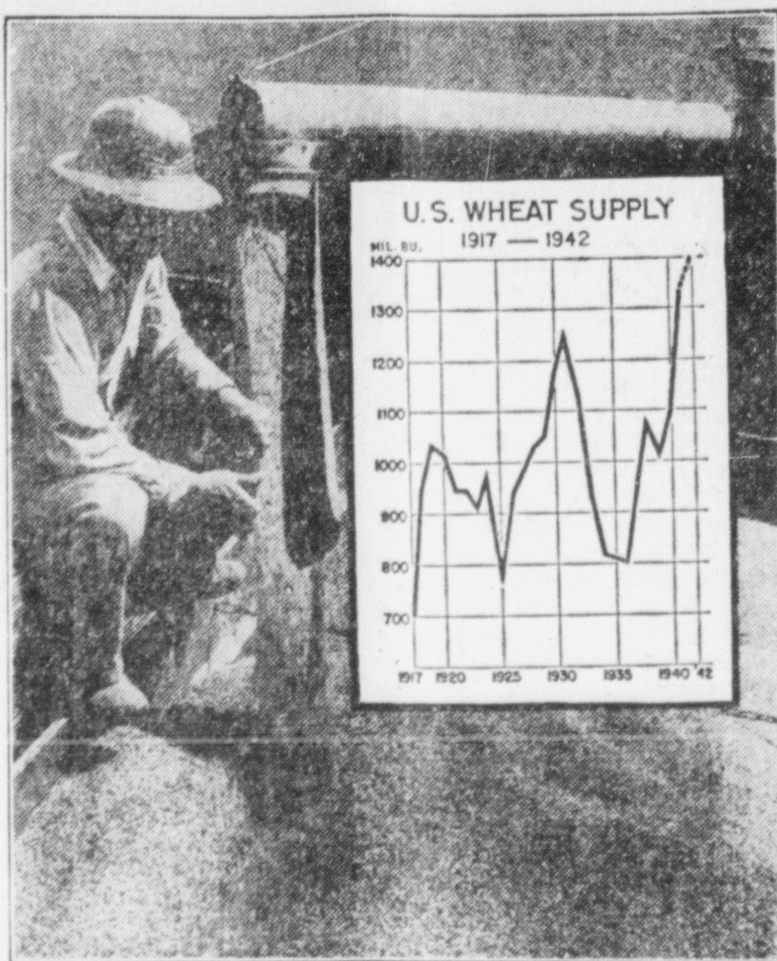

More Rationing Certain
Meanwhile, he asserted, as shortages develop the country must prepare for more and more rationing. He refused to say that commodity would be next.

Following through President Roosevelt's declaration that the nation must face "spartan living," Henderson, in his statement, said: "The material standing of living of the American people will fall. . . . Further reorganization of the economy for war must be accomplished through priorities, allocations, and rationing rather than through price."

"This regulation serves as a setting for companion steps in wage, profits and fiscal policy. . . . It is important that the excess of purchasing power be rigidly confined."

U. S. Wheat Bins Are Full

World War II finds the United States well supplied with wheat, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. As the chart indicates, the supply is double that of 1917 when America entered the first World War. It is estimated that on July 1, the Nation's supply will be nearly 1½ billion bushels, enough for two years of domestic use. Instead of plowing up new land and expanding wheat acreage, farmers are able to use land, labor, and equipment in turning out other war commodities more vitally needed—such as dairy, poultry, and meat products, vegetables, and oil crops.

COUNTYANS BALLOT ON QUOTA QUESTION

For the second time in history, Pickaway county wheat farmers Saturday will go to voting stations within their precincts to ballot on the issue of a marketing quota referendum.

Election polls will open at 8 a. m. Saturday and will remain open until 5 p. m. AAA officials predict that the marketing quota vote will carry in Pickaway county, since most farmers already have complied with the government's restriction program. The marketing quota vote carried by a small margin in Pickaway county last year.

Voting stations including the following: Circleville township, AAA office, East Main street; Darby, township house, Derby; Deer creek, township house, Williamsport; Harrison, township house, Gray station; Jackson, township house, Fox; Madison, township house, Monroe; township house, Five Points; Muhlenberg, township house, Darbyville; Perry, Atlanta school building; Pickaway, township house; Salt-creek, school building; Scioto, township house, Commercial Point; Walnut, township house, west precinct; Washington, township house and Wayne, township house.

STRAWSER YOUTH HELD AS NAVAL STRAGGLER

Police Chief W. F. McCrady is holding George A. Strawser, South Scioto street, as a straggler from the United States Navy. The twenty-two-year old youth was arrested at his home Tuesday after local authorities had been notified by the Navy department that Strawser, stationed at the San Francisco naval station, failed to return from furlough on April 19.

Chief McCrady was checking with naval authorities Wednesday to determine what to do with the youth.

There, uniting with the Italian fleet and part or all of the French fleet, they would stage a terrific bombardment of Egypt, Syria and Palestine, and so blast through the gateways to the oil fields of Persia and Mesopotamia. This would open the way to an advance on Russia from the South.

This prospective blow at the Near East is the biggest worry of all.

However, balanced against this, is Hitler's own worry over a British-U. S. invasion of Europe or North Africa, plus the tremendous supplies we are delivering both to Russia and Egypt. So the picture is mixed, with only one thing sure: Hitler has got to win this Summer or he is finished.

BRITISH BACKBONE

Modest Senator Green of Rhode Island has been a consistent rooster for the British, voted vigorously for all lend-lease aid to Britain, favored Roosevelt's pro-British foreign policy 100 percent. But the other day he remarked to a British friend:

"I have fought for the British, voted for them, worked for them. But whenever I meet a member of the British Embassy I have to introduce myself all over again. They never know who I am."

Senator Green's experience, plus those of many other congressmen, with the polite but crystal-gazing British Embassy was discussed last week with British movie producer Alfred Hitchcock. In Washington to open his new mystery-thriller, "Saboteur," Hitchcock was urged by a group of senators to do a picture which would prove to the American people that the English people are not all like their Embassy.

"We need something which will sell the British people to the American people," urged Senator Claude Pepper of Florida. "We are 100 percent for the British. But a lot of our folks don't know them. We need to know more about the man in the street, the folks who are just like our folks. Unfortunately too many of us have the impression that all British are like the very charming but somewhat rarified nobility which the British Foreign Office sends over here."

Hitchcock said that his next picture would be something which got down to the bed-rock of the British people and would show what the backbone of the Empire was made of.

IDLE CARS

JACKING up a car to rest idle for the duration will not help to win the war. The car merely deteriorates its life out instead of wearing it out.

Driving fast is now out of the picture. Buying two new tires per year, which used to be a virtue, is now not even a vice — there's no exercise of will involved. It does not happen. The ordinary pleasure driver must get along with what he now has for a long time.

But idle cars are not useful. In the opinion of an expert, this is what happens to them: In about three months the battery will lose its charge. The tires will begin to go bad. The inside of the crankcase will begin to accumulate moisture from the air. If the engine is not used for a long time, this water condensing from the air will pit the cylinder walls, rust the piston rings and corrode the surface of bearings.

It is the part of wisdom, then, to use the car. Most drivers know roughly how much gas they use in a year, how many miles they will find they can get along on half that mileage. If they cut the speed down by a fourth, they will save more things than gas. They will conserve tires, road-surfaces and their own nervous systems.

There will be some gas, even in the East. Tires used, not abused, may hold out the three or four years necessary before synthetic rubber comes.

The car is a creature intended for motion; inaction is bad for it. Speed and abuse must go for the present. Moderate use will keep it in condition.

CURATIVE FEVER

FEVERS used to be regarded as completely and necessarily bad, and accordingly efforts were always made to keep them down. Then, early in the present century, doctors made the surprising discovery that fevers apparently had a natural purpose. While often destructive in their effects, nevertheless they seemed to be one of Nature's efforts to cure disease. Since then, fevers have been encouraged, or even produced artificially, in certain kinds of cases, with surprising benefit.

It would have been a bold physician, however, who a generation ago would have suggested the possibility of curing cancer by raising the bodily temperature. This very thing is currently reported from a meeting of the American College of Physicians at St. Paul, Minn. Patients with supposedly hopeless cases of cancer, in experiments at Meharry Medical college, Nashville, Tenn., were subjected by expert

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Rep. Clare Hoffman

CONSIDERING how completely partisanship is supposed to be suspended "for the duration" there seems to be quite a bit of it in connection with the current congressional campaign.

It certainly is rather partisan if it's a fact, as charged by Representative Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan, that the Democratic administration is trying to defeat him, and as many other Republicans as possible, by "smearing" them as pro-Axis propagandists, among details of a grand jury investigation Attorney General Francis Biddle has been conducting in Washington lately.

That Clare's accusation's provable isn't likely, for the justice department naturally doesn't admit it, but the Michigan-made it, in a formal speech on Capitol Hill, and even if it isn't so, it was a mean jab at the administration — all the meaner if Clare made it up. Indeed, I think he believes it, though, and it isn't a very non-partisan idea, looked at from either standpoint.

Wendell Willkie, Republican Congressional Leader Joseph W. Martin, ex-Chairman John Hamilton of the G. O. P.'s national committee, Clarence Buddington Kelland, the committee's present publicity manager, and many another of the party's big bugs are out with declarations of unqualified loyalty to the New Deal's war effort, but most of them strongly hint that their own bunch could make a still better one.

And, anyway, they all agree that the war's the only subject that they're pro-administration on.

"Unsound Panaceas"

As Publicity Manager Kelland put it, they're afraid that the New Dealers will take advantage of the war for the extension of "unsound economic panaceas" — lapping over into subsequent peace time.

Congressman Martin also mentions the vital essentiality of the two-party system to democracy's survival—that is, the G. O. P.'s survival by the election of plenty of its candidates in November.

Wendell Willkie, who dictated most of the Republican national committee's 1942 declaration of campaign principles, was a trifle funny about it. He dwelt emphatically upon the party's historic devotion to human liberty and equality, somewhat implying that the Democrats haven't always stood so pat for em, the conclusion, seemingly, being that the latter mustn't be permitted to make too clean a sweep next fall, or liberty and equality won't be so safe afterward. The humor of it is that Wendell was a Democrat until shortly before he was presidentially nominated.

G. O. P. Publicity-ite Kelland, who, in the nature of his job, should be an authority on the subject of publicity, has taken a resounding crack at the administration's surplus (so he says) of publicity.

Kelland's account is that 30,000 of its personnel are, not exactly at work, but drawing pay in Washington, and that they simply waste paper, now getting scarce, with their "releases." Congressman Percy Priest of Tennessee likewise has howled over the government's "sprawling publicity" — and Priest's a Democrat.

"Unity," G. O. P. Cry

We want unity, hollers the Republican national committee, regardless of "party affiliations." Nevertheless, the committee adds, "lack of organization is the outstanding weakness of the present administration."

Publicity's one of the items of it. Or, rather, the developing censorship, under Bryon Price, is.

A news correspondent of my acquaintance emitted a terrible yell concerning it a few days ago. He was technical publications, to which he has to transmit scientific words, un-understandable to an uneducated guy, such as the average censorial bird, and the latter erases them, however harmless they may be, as some sort of a cipher.

It makes the system unnecessarily unpopular.

It also suppresses some news that it would be desirable to have circulated. George Creel, our censor in World War I, recently broadcast a warning concerning this.

Well, at all events, this doesn't add up to me to be as non-partisan a political campaign as it's advertised.

RUSSIA'S CHANCES FIFTY-FIFTY

WASHINGTON—When Harry Hopkins and Averell Harriman arrived in Russia several months ago, one thing Stalin told them was that he didn't want any American observers at the front.

"Our regime is different from yours," Stalin said in effect. "I know you have foreign observers and newspapermen at the front, but we run things differently. So please don't ask us for this."

Therefore, at no time have American or British observers been on the Russian front. A few U. S. officers have made trips behind the lines, but only for a short time. This is why U. S. official knowledge of the exact condition of the Russian army is either second-hand or deduction.

However, according to the best sources available, here is an approximate estimate of Russia's strength and her chances of holding out against Germany this Spring and Summer. The picture is neither black nor white. It is mixed.

First, it is an inescapable fact that the German retreat during the Winter was not so important as generally featured in Moscow cables. Actually, the Nazis executed a brilliant maneuver in straightening their lines, and an examination of the map shows that their retreat was not very substantial.

However, the Russian army has shown itself to be of much tougher stuff than anyone expected. Its manpower seems unlimited. Morale is high, while German morale is reported poor, with troops tired and depending in part on Bulgaria, Hungary, Rumania and Italy.

Russia's greatest lack is tanks and airplanes. These have been going from the United States and England as fast as we can ship them — but not fast enough. On the other hand, the Russians have a good supply of small arms and machine guns.

Therefore, Russian chances against the Germans ought to be about fifty-fifty — perhaps even better in the extreme south where they will be aided by the steep mountain peaks of the Caucasus.

WORRY OVER NEAR EAST

What worries Allied strategists is the prospect of a Nazi push against the British in the Near East — simultaneous with a drive against South Russia.

British troops unfortunately have not stood up well against von Rommel in Libya. At one time he was reduced to only thirty tanks, and if the British were not able to wipe him out then, things don't look too optimistic for the future.

Another black cloud is the possibility of German naval activity in the Mediterranean. U. S. strategists consider it a distinct possibility that the big Nazi battle-ships, some of which escaped from Brest physicians to artificial fevers running as high as 104 to 106 degrees. Of 50 patients treated over a period of two years, 39 showed signs of improvement, and in a few all signs of the cancers disappeared.

The fever was used in connection with Q-rays, the rays being applied after the bodily heat had been raised by a "fever machine."

Value of "Blood Banks" In Expediting Transfusions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

CONSIDERABLE confusion exists in the minds of most people concerning the new term "blood banks," and as a matter of fact, considerable confusion exists in the minds of a great many doctors about them.

The Red Cross has been largely responsible for attempting to establish in various cities and communities permanent blood banks which can be used immediately for blood transfusions in case of emergency. I have heard of a number of people who have been very much perturbed because in Mid-Western cities no such blood banks have been established, but it must be remembered that for some time hospitals have been preparing for emergencies of this kind.

For an ordinary blood transfusion blood is removed from the vein of a donor and put in the vein of the patient or recipient. This means whole blood—plasma and red cells. Unless this blood is typed properly, there will be an accident.

Right Type Essential

Blood is typed in two particular ways: the serum of the donor is mixed with the cells of the recipient. These are then observed to see whether they clot—agglutination—or whether the one dissolves the other—hemolysis. In either of these events the typing is not proper. It is therefore necessary in any blood transfusion to know that the type of blood of the donor and the recipient fit.

I have heard to show the efficiency of the German army, that whole regiments are put together of the same blood type so that if blood transfusions are necessary, they can be done immediately, without typing, from any man in the regiment.

Now most hospitals have a list of blood donors, several hundred in number, who have been typed and who are available and who are willing to be used in case of emergency. This will take care of any emergency likely to occur, short of actual emergency warfare.

Kinds of Blood Banks

But this has nothing to do with what is known as a blood bank. In one kind, called a plasma bank, blood is removed from a donor, typed and centrifuged and an anti-coagulant mixture so that it is ready for immediate use.

This has no red blood cells in it, but because it replaces blood mass it is very valuable in shock. Another form called the serum bank is simply the serum of blood which has been allowed to clot and then the serum is decanted off. This is not considered as efficient as the plasma bank, however.

A third form is the dry plasma, which is the easiest to keep and preserve, but pathologists of my acquaintance are not all agreed as to the usefulness and harmlessness of the dried blood plasma.

The plasma banks are put in a refrigerator and used cold as it has been found that they are less dangerous in a refrigerated state than at body temperature. The difficulty with the plasma bank is the amount of refrigerator space which is required. In the refrigerator, the plasma blood bank apparently keeps indefinitely. I have known them to be used five or six months after the blood was drawn without doing the recipient any harm.

Undoubtedly in the near future in all communities such blood banks will be available and I know there is a great deal of activity in the medical profession to see that such banks are provided so that any anxiety on this score can be allayed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. W.: "Can any harm come from taking three raw eggs a day, four hours apart?"

Answer: No.

L. K.: Are tomatoes and oranges harmful to people who suffer from rheumatism?"

Answer: No, this is an old and long ago exploded theory. The idea was that they caused acidity, but as a matter of fact, the vegetables and fruits are quickly turned into alkalis during the process of digestion, and in most clinics such vegetables as tomatoes and oranges are recommended for arthritis.

H. H.: If an operation can be performed that will cure perspiration of the hands, is such an operation safe, and can any local physician perform the operation or does it require the services of a specialist?"

Answer: I know of no generally recognized operation of this kind. The only thing that would be theoretically permissible would be to remove the sympathetic nerve ganglia and this certainly can not be done by the average surgeon. Since there is no danger or serious significance in perspiration of the hands, it would be common sense not to risk so serious an operation for so slight an advantage.

W. H.: What makes one's nose bleed when hurrying, excited or over heated?"

Answer: It depends a good deal on the person. In a middle aged person I would suspect high blood pressure. In a younger person I would suspect an ulcer in the nose.

SYNOPSIS
Three young airline hostesses, TIBBY LANE, sweet and natural; STEENA WINTERS, beautiful and sophisticated, and MARG BAKER, plain, sturdy and direct, share an apartment together in New York, where they are based. A friend of Tibby's, TOMMY DARE, is spending his first year out of medical school at a clinic in Brooklyn. Steena sets her cap for WAYNE COURTRIGHT, wealthy official of the airline.

CHAPTER NINE

"I SAID," Tommy repeated, at Tibby's request to "say that again," "that I wish you'd stay home—and wait for me. I also said that I had no right to say it—much less to say it again." He was facing her now; his blue eyes held a strained look, his lean jaw was grim. "You know darn well how I feel about you. You ought to—after that kiss."

He need not say what kiss; Tibby knew which one he meant. Maybe, had he taken her in his arms right then, even though there were no moon, everything might have been different. Had he kissed her again, as he had that one time when he had said goodbye, that would have contributed the romance that was lacking.

Again, it was like Tommy to make love in such an abrupt and unromantic way, telling her that although she knew how he felt about her, he was sorry he did!

Tibby did not realize that the reason Tommy was so inept was that this was the first time he ever had made love to any girl. Now a man like Wayne Courtright, a connoisseur of women, would have known how to sweep a girl off her feet right there in that deserted parking lot. But he might not have been so grave, as grim as Tommy, who took love earnestly, desperately, not for a pleasant pastime.

Tibby said, "Why should I sit at home and twirl my fingers—for any man?" She was filled with a mixture of confused emotions. She was touched and pleased at Tommy's admission of how he felt about her. At the same time she was slightly indignant, too. What a way to tell a girl you loved her! What a way to propose marriage!

Any girl wanted her first proposal to be something she could never, never forget, something she could cherish and dream about, even if she refused and said "no." More so in the event she decided to say "yes."

"You shouldn't you?" Tommy asked. "You don't have to risk your neck and wear yourself out in this hostess business. Flying is for men."

"It's not dangerous," Tibby and he had gone over this so often it was an old story. Why didn't he keep to the new one he had just started, if he wanted her to answer "yes"? "Statistics prove it's much safer than automobiles." She knew it was not to flying that Tommy objected, really. He would have objected had she chosen any other occupation. Tommy was old-fashioned when it came to women. Kind of nice in a man, at that. Too many were willing to allow a woman to slave for them; chivalry had gone rather stale.

"Women don't sit at home any more," Tibby said. "Those days are gone forever." Now if he had suggested she go on with her flying and wait for him things still might have been different.

"Then that's too bad," Tommy returned, his jaw still grim. "It was a nice time before. Now it's going haywire in every way. It's always taken a man a while to get on his feet. But these days it will take years. That's why I said I had so right to ask any girl to wait for me."

She did not know he had asked just "any" girl. He ought to know that were Tibby certain he was the one she would not have minded how long the waiting was. But she honestly was not certain. Tommy was dear to her, of course; she was frightfully fond of him. But love—how could one know when it came? How could one be sure that one man, out of all the world, was the one, the only one, for you?

Tibby would have to know that.

She did not want any short order; she took love gravely, too.

"You've stayed away a long while," she said, "if that's really how you feel." How could Tommy be sure? Maybe it was just that he had known her so long, that he, too, had been moved by that extra kiss. Maybe he was lonely, especially when he thought of that long road ahead of which he just had spoken.

"I stayed away because I thought it was better." His eyes, although the night was so dark, still looked strained. "Then I found I couldn't..."

"But that's silly!" Tibby interrupted. "Why can't we go on—as we are—Tommy? We've always had such fun together. Why must we try to change things yet?" Gone was that adolescent world, the spirit of play, the laughter, that world so familiar and dear. He had been the one to ask her not to change. Yet now he would have tried to have made her different.

"If that's the way you want it," Tommy said.

"You said yourself it would be better."

"So I did." Some of the grimness fell away. His eyes, looking into hers, were almost smiling. In relief, maybe, because she had not said "yes," and yet had not said "no"? He had said he knew he had no right to ask for any answer now.

"Haven't we better get started?" Tibby asked. They could not stand here forever in this parking lot, with the sounds of the merry-go-round and the dips, the faint buzz of that play-land humming in their ears. Could they ever come back to it—the old playmate standing again? Could things ever be quite the same between them, although they tried to make them so?

"I guess we had," Tommy agreed. He held open the door of the borrowed car for her. Not as he would have flung it open before, indicating with a jerk of his blond head that she was to pile in. He helped her in now, stiffly, formally, with a touch of that gallantry he had given Steena.

Tibby did not like it, not nearly as well as the old manner. It made her feel stiff and formal, too.

The silence between them on the ride home did not help any. It, too, was constricted, as if they suddenly had become strangers.

"I hope I didn't hurt your feelings or anything," Tibby said, as they drove up at last to the apartment. She could not say goodbye without saying something else. She did not want to part from Tommy like this.

"My feelings!" He laughed, but it was a formal, stiff little sound, not the spontaneous laughter that came so naturally to Tommy's lips. "Forget it. Forget what I said. Tibby, it's gone, too—like the good old days, the same old world."

Now it was Tibby's feelings that were wounded. He wanted her to forget he ever had proposed, although it had not been much of a proposal. He wanted her to forget that he had said he felt that way about her. That showed he had decided, as quickly, that maybe he did not feel that way at all.

"Oh, I'll forget it!" Tibby tossed her dark curls. She would never remind him, not so much as by a single act, a slip of the tongue. If it wasn't just like Tommy to end up by making her mad. "I've forgotten already," she added. The idea of withdrawing a proposal of marriage almost before it was actually offered! That was like Tommy.

She yanked open the door before he could reach across to open it for her. She jumped out without any assistance. He need not bother with gallantry for her. He could save it for the next girl to whom he proposed, since he might need it then.

Not that she would let him know she was hurt. She said, "You needn't bother seeing me to my door. That's gone out of date, too. I suppose I'll be seeing you some time or other. Though you needn't be AFRAID to stay away."

It was ridiculous that her throat should be so tight, that there should be the sting of tears behind her eyes, only because she was angry, of course, not because she cared.

Tommy said, "I'll be here often—and soon—if you think that." Again his tone was grim. "I won't bother to see you safely to your door, if you don't want me to, my dear."

IDLE CARS

JACKING up a car to rest idle for the duration will not help to win the war. The car merely deteriorates its life out instead of wearing it out.

Driving fast is now out of the picture. Buying two new tires per year, which used to be a virtue, is now not even a vice — there's no exercise of will involved. It does not happen. The ordinary pleasure driver must get along with what he now has for a long time.

But idle cars are not useful. In the opinion of an expert, this is what happens to them: In about three months the battery will lose its charge. The tires will begin to go bad. The inside of the crankcase will begin to accumulate moisture from the air. If the engine is not used for a long time, this water condensing from the air will pit the cylinder walls, rust the piston rings and corrode the surface of bearings.

It is the part of wisdom, then, to use the car. Most drivers know roughly how much gas they use in a year, how many miles they will find they can get along on half that mileage. If they cut the speed down by a fourth, they will save more things than gas. They will conserve tires, road-surfaces and their own nervous systems.

There will be some gas, even in the East. Tires used, not abused, may hold out the three or four years necessary before synthetic rubber comes.

The car is a creature intended for motion; inaction is bad for it. Speed and abuse must go for the present. Moderate use will keep it in condition.

CURATIVE FEVER

FEVERS used to be regarded as completely and necessarily bad, and accordingly efforts were always made to keep them down. Then, early in the present century, doctors made the surprising discovery that fevers apparently had a natural purpose. While often destructive in their effects, nevertheless they seemed to be one of Nature's efforts to cure disease. Since then, fevers have been encouraged, or even produced artificially, in certain kinds of cases, with surprising benefit.

It would have been a bold physician, however, who a generation ago would have suggested the possibility of curing cancer by raising the bodily temperature. This very thing is currently reported from a meeting of the American College of Physicians at St. Paul, Minn. Patients with supposedly hopeless cases of cancer, in experiments at Meharry Medical college, Nashville, Tenn., were subjected by expert

WASHINGTON—When Harry Hopkins and Averell Harriman arrived in Russia several months ago, one thing Stalin told them was that he didn't want any American observers at the front.

"Our regime is different from yours," Stalin said in effect. "I know you have foreign observers and newspapermen at the front, but we run things differently. So please don't ask us for this."

Therefore, at no time have American or British observers been on the Russian front. A few U. S. officers have made trips behind the lines, but only for a short time. This is why U. S. official knowledge of the exact condition of the Russian army is either second-hand or deduction.

However, according to the best sources available, here is an approximate estimate of Russia's strength and her chances of holding out against Germany this Spring and Summer. The picture is neither black nor white. It is mixed.

First, it is an inescapable fact that the German retreat during the Winter was not so important as generally featured in Moscow cables. Actually, the Nazis executed a brilliant maneuver in straightening their lines, and an examination of the map shows that their retreat was not very substantial.

However, the Russian army has shown itself to be of much tougher stuff than anyone expected. Its manpower seems unlimited. Morale is high, while German morale is reported poor, with troops tired and depending in part on Bulgaria, Hungary, Rumania and Italy.

Russia's greatest lack is tanks and airplanes. These have been going from the United States and England as fast as we can ship them — but not fast enough. On the other hand, the Russians have a good supply of small arms and machine guns.

Therefore, Russian chances against the Germans ought to be about fifty-fifty — perhaps even better in the extreme south where they will be aided by the steep mountain peaks of the Caucasus.

WORRY OVER NEAR EAST

What worries Allied strategists is the prospect of a Nazi push against the British in the Near East — simultaneous with a drive against South Russia.

British troops unfortunately have not stood up well against von Rommel in Libya. At one time he was reduced to only thirty tanks, and if the British were not able to wipe him out then, things don't look too optimistic for the future.

Another black cloud is the possibility of German naval activity in the Mediterranean. U. S. strategists consider it a distinct possibility that the big Nazi battleships, some of which escaped from Brest physicians to artificial fevers running as high as 104 to 106 degrees. Of 50 patients treated over a period of two years, 39 showed signs of improvement, and in a few all signs of the cancers disappeared.

Value of "Blood Banks" In Expediting Transfusions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

CONSIDERABLE confusion exists in the minds of most people concerning the new term "blood banks," and as a matter of fact, considerable confusion exists in the minds of a great many doctors about them.

The Red Cross has been largely responsible for attempting to establish in various cities and communities permanent blood banks which can be used immediately for blood transfusions in case of emergency. I have heard of a number of people who have been very much perturbed because in Mid-Western cities no such blood banks have been established, but it must be remembered that for some time hospitals have been preparing for emergencies of this kind.

For an ordinary blood transfusion blood is removed from the vein of a donor and put in the vein of the patient or recipient. This means whole blood—plasma and red cells. Unless this blood is typed properly, there will be an accident.

Right Type Essential
Blood is typed in two particulars: the serum of the donor is mixed with the cells of the recipient. These are then observed to see whether they clot—agglutination—or whether the one dissolves the other—hemolysis. In either of these events the typing is not proper. It is therefore necessary to know the type of blood of the donor and the recipient fit.

I have heard, to show the efficiency of the German army, that whole regiments are put together of the same blood type so that if blood transfusions are necessary, they can be done immediately, without typing, from any man in the regiment.

Now most hospitals have a list of blood donors, several hundred in number, who have been typed and who are available and who are willing to be used in case of emergency. This will take care of any emergency likely to occur, short of actual emergency warfare.

Kinds of Blood Banks
But this has nothing to do with what is known as a blood bank. In one kind, called a plasma bank, blood is removed from a donor, typed and centrifuged in an anti-coagulant mixture so that it is ready for immediate use.

A third form is the dry plasma, which is the easiest to keep and preserve, but pathologists of my acquaintance are not all agreed as to the usefulness and harmlessness of the dried blood plasma.

The plasma banks are put in a refrigerator and used cold as it has been found that they are less dangerous in a refrigerated state than at body temperature. The difficulty with the plasma bank is the amount of refrigerator space which is required. In the refrigerator, the plasma blood bank apparently keeps indefinitely. I have known them to be used five or six months after the blood was drawn without doing the recipient any harm.

Trade Sugar Sign Up to End Tonight; Consumer Data Received

M'DOWELL SAYS FIRST DAY TASK WELL HANDLED

Individuals To Start Visits To Grade Buildings Next Monday To Register

QUOTAS ARE FIGURED

Four Rationing Periods To Be Established For All Individuals

Final registration of trade consumers of sugar will close Wednesday night and school officials will turn their attention to the consumer registration, scheduled to open May 4.

Coordinator George McDowell said Wednesday that Tuesday's registration in the various high schools was conducted smoothly. Several of the rationing officials called him regarding questions which came up during the registration, but in general there was no unnecessary confusion.

Figures on the total number registered cannot be obtained until after the registration closes Wednesday night, the county coordinator said.

Additional information on the consumer registration arrived at the coordinator's office Wednesday.

Frank Fischer, in charge of Circleville trade registration, called attention of churches and lodges Wednesday to the sugar rationing program, and pointed out that all must receive their proper certificates. Only one church had a representative before the board Tuesday evening, the superintendent said.

day. The instructions set up four ration periods for May and June.

During the two months, individual consumers will be allotted four pounds of sugar. They may receive one pound between May 5 and May 16, a second pound between May 17 and May 30, a third pound between May 31 and June 13 and a fourth pound between June 14 and June 27.

Consumer registration will be held in the elementary schools and the local school superintendents have been designated as school site administrators in supervising the registration.

Individual consumers will register in their respective school districts.

TICKET SALES INDICATE MANY TO ENJOY PLAY

Practices for the annual Senior class play are in the final stages, with the dress rehearsal being held today. Everything is in readiness for the presentation on Thursday and Friday evenings.

The play promises to be an excellent one, and ticket sales indicate that a large crowd will be present each night.

Tickets went on reserve at Hamilton and Ryan's drug store Tuesday, with the business staff in charge.

The Circleville high school sextette and the high school orchestra will provide an added attraction to the play-goers.

Curtain time is 8:30.

BOY, 19, ADMITS KILLING BOSTON SWEETHEART, 28

BOSTON, April 23—David H. Edwards, 19-year-old son of a veteran police sergeant, confessed, police said, today to stabbing to death Miss Catherine McCarthy, 28, in her Roxbury apartment. Edwards was arrested as he attempted to end his own life by monoxide gas, police said.

Edwards, son of Police Sergeant Adrian Edwards, was booked at police headquarters after authorities said he had admitted stabbing Miss McCarthy with a six-inch kitchen knife. Police said Edwards was infatuated with Miss McCarthy but that she had refused to take his attentions seriously because of the difference in their ages.

Police took Edwards into custody after finding him crouched on the floor of his car with a hose leading from the exhaust into one of the car windows.

N. & W. BACKING WAR BOND PLAN WITH BIG SALES

In the first week of a system-wide campaign to enlist every employee of the Norfolk and Western railway as a regular buyer of War Savings Bonds, 63 percent of the railroad workers have subscribed to more than a million and a half dollars, according to a report issued by L. C. Ayers, N. & W. assistant general manager, and chairman of the drive.

Of the approximately 22,000 employees on the N. & W., more than 14,000 have already subscribed to bonds, or have reported bonds purchased. Mr. Ayers pointed out that the average amount paid for bonds by each of the 14,000 employees was more than $100.

"The first phase of our bond campaign has proven successful, and the results are pleasing," Mr. Ayers said, but pointed out that "all committeemen and solicitors on the entire railroad system must intensify their efforts so that we may reach our final goal of 100 percent by May 5!"

At the N. & W. general offices in Roanoke, Va., 18 departments have already hit the 100 percent mark. Seventy percent of general office workers have subscribed. More than 66 percent of the Roanoke shops employees have purchased war bonds, totalling $170,300.

Your Baby is America's Young Hopeful, with a fair chance of becoming anything from President to a senator, preacher, doctor, plumber or teacher, because this is the Land of Opportunity. Don't think he's sorry he came busting in at a bad time — he's glad he was born in 1942! He knows that if he'd been born a hundred years ago his life expectancy would have been 40 instead of 65. He'd have had to work twice as hard and had almost no conveniences. He'd have stood one chance in 500 of going to college. He couldn't have heard a radio or seen a movie. This is a good time to be born. As for this fight for freedom we're all steamed up about — he knows "we've done it before and we can do it again." Salute Baby, the little guy who's going to carry on those American traditions we're fighting for!

But your baby may start life with added good fortune, if it is the very first to be born in this city on the first of May! Of course there is no way you can know in advance—but you can follow all the contest rules and have your entry ready to be submitted the moment your little son or daughter (or twin or more) is born.
